Bio

Vincent R. Cocco is a trial attorney and member of the Commercial and Civil Litigation team at Timoney Knox. Vince focuses his practice on successfully representing clients in general civil litigation, commercial litigation, personal injury, and criminal matters. Vince is an accomplished trial attorney and litigator who is skilled in seeing a matter from case strategy and evaluation through trial, if necessary.

Prior to joining Timoney Knox, Vince worked at a large civil litigation firm focusing primarily on complex medical and professional negligence cases, as well as institutional and sexual abuse. There, Vince successfully represented corporate entities, small businesses, healthcare facilities, and insurance companies involved in complex litigation. This gives Vince a valuable and unique perspective on cases that greatly benefits his clients.

Vince began his legal career as an Assistant District Attorney for the Chester County District Attorney's Office, where he refined his advocacy and courtroom skills. Vince started in the Major Crimes Unit and transitioned into the Drug and Organized Crime Unit, where he was the lead prosecutor on thousands of felony and misdemeanor cases. There, Vince handled some of the Office's most complicated and notable cases, prosecuting the County's most dangerous offenders. His background and experience in prosecuting dangerous criminals and high profile matters has made Vince confident and aggressive in fighting for his client's rights, no matter the issue. In July, 2022, Vince's advocacy skills were recognized when he was interviewed by Investigation Discovery Channel for the nationally televised
